Man jailed for alleged sexual assault during Hancock-area camping trip

Both victim and suspect traveled with same group

BY GEOFF BELCHER
NEWS EDITOR

A Louisiana man was arrested last week for allegedly sexually assaulting a woman in March while she was on a camping trip in Hancock County.

Officers of the Baton Rouge Police Department on Wednesday arrested Michael Austin Yeninas, 21, of Slidell, charging him with one count of sexual battery. Yeninas was then extradited to Hancock County.

"The arrest was based on a warrant from a complainant who filed a report on March 25," Waveland Police Chief David Allen said Tuesday. "In the report, the victim advised she was sexually assaulted by Yeninas while they were camping with a group of friends at Buccaneer Park."

Allen said the victim was also from Louisiana, and both she and the suspect had traveled to Buccaneer Park with a group for the camping trip.

"They all had come there together," Allen said. "There are no other charges, no other victims." However, he said, "It's still in the process of being investigated."

Allen said the name of the victim was being withheld from the public due to the nature of the allegations. Yeninas was released on a $25,000 bond. An initial court date in the matter has been set for July 12.

Dunbar Village hosts Memorial Day ceremony

BY GEOFF
BELCHER
NEWS EDITOR

The Dunbar Village retirement community hosted a special Memorial Day service and "indoor parade" to honor its residents -- both past and present -- with military backgrounds.

"We want to honor all our deceased service personnel," RN Supervisory Patsy Lawless said during the ceremony. "We recognize all branches of our military. We wear wings to honor our fallen angels."

The ceremony included special recognition of the late Lt. Col. Randolph C. Bourgeois, a former resident at Dunbar Village who passed away on April 19.

The centerpiece of the memorial was Bourgeois' cap, which had a patch detailing his military service.

"Col. Bourgeois served in three different conflicts," Lawless said, "World War II, Korea and Vietnam."

Lawless also recognized all the current Dunbar residents and employees who served in the military, naming them and their branches of service.

Also receiving special recognition Monday was current resident Admiral Jim McCardell, whose daughter Jenise presented him with a two-star admiral's flag.

For the parade, Dunbar staff wheeled the residents through the hallways, while everyone waved flags and patriotic streamers.

"We plan lots of things like this for the residents," Lawless said. "We love doing it. It makes us a community, a neighborhood, which is what we are."

Baxter named George Mason University Fellow

SEA COAST ECHO

Jennifer Baxter, Hancock County Library System Executive Director, has received a Frédéric Bastiat Fellowship from the Mercatus Center at George Mason University for the 2018-2019 academic year.

The Fellowship program is a competitive, one-year program awarded to graduate students attending master's, juris doctoral, and doctoral programs in a variety of fields including economics, law, political science, and public policy.

The aim of these fellowships is to introduce students to the frameworks of market process economics, public choice, and institutional analysis, as well as to explore the utilization of these frameworks in analyzing contemporary policy issues.

Jennifer Baxter

Bastiat Fellows spend four weekends from August 20, 2018 to August 19, 2019 in residence at the Mercatus Center at George Mason University participating in workshops and seminars where they will interact with Mercatus scholars that work on the cutting edge of policy analysis, bridging the gap between academic ideas and real world problems.

Baxter holds a B.A. in Journalism from the University of Mississippi, a Masters of Library & Information Science (MLIS) from the University of Southern Mississippi, and is currently working on her Masters in Public Administration.

"I have a vision," said Baxter, "for the future of libraries, which I believe will allow the libraries of old to transition into a library of the future." She also said she is dedicated to libraries becoming community anchors through technology training, collaborative business and municipal development and training, and a focus on community education.

The skills for success

I've been thinking a lot about my own childhood lately and I wonder what it's like for today's youngsters, compared to what my generation faced.

When I was growing up in the mid-1930s, children had to work hard every day just to help ensure their families' survival.

The typical child of my generation started formal schooling at age six; today's youth start much younger.

One of the reasons my peers and I didn't go to school earlier was because at that time, many of us had daily duties and chores which helped put food on the table.

In my opinion, today's youth are lucky because most of them don't have that worry, so they can have more time for education and developing skills, as well as spend more time at recreation.

I'm sure some will agree with me, though others might disagree. Of course, today's youth need drastically different survival skills than did my generation. And parenting has changed quite a bit over the years, as well.

My father's father worked at the big sawmill in the Kiln, and my father started working there himself over summer breaks from school at age eight. So, obviously, my father's generation grew up much differently than mine.

My mother was raised in the city of New Orleans and her father worked on the docks of the Mississippi River for a big company.

My mother graduated from the eighth grade at age 13 and began working as a seamstress at a suit factory. She continued working as a seamstress after she married my father and ended up working in a military garment factory in Gulfport throughout World War II. Obviously, every generation is a little different, and society's needs are constantly changing.

What will today's youngsters do as they grow older? What will they learn? What will they do for a living when they grow up?

And it will be even more different for the next generation, and the one after that.

But I think one thing that should remain constant is having a decent work ethic.

My three brothers were all retired from the military, then embarked on second careers after that. I was in the military, then left to work here at the Sea Coast Echo, where I worked full time until quite recently. The skills and the work ethics that were instilled in us at a very early age helped us all to be successful. There are three other important qualities that I believe should be taught to all children, in every generation: Honesty, integrity and dependability.

I believe they are important qualities everyone needs in order to be successful.

Your wholesome choices may bring serendipity

One Saturday evening in 1998, Iranian-born but then American citizen Azita Milanian had been invited to go dancing. Without hope aforesight that her choice might have eternal ramifications, she was drawn imperceptibly away from the attraction of dancing to the healthy prospect of jogging. Clairvoyant, Azita recalls, "I was going to run 20 minutes and suddenly I felt like I was going to be sick, like someone was choking me or I was throwing up, and I think it was exactly 10 to 15 minutes before (discovering the baby)."

For the first time in 8 years, she jogged on a different route in Altadena, California. All was nominal until one of her dogs, Tango, had stopped to smell and dig on the trail. Upon inspecting the site, Azita thought she saw an animal with two little feet coming out of the ground. With a disturbing chill, this picture conjured up in my mind the bloody mischief coyotes living in the surrounding foothills would have created if one of them had got there first.

REFLECTIONS ON LIFE

by Fr. Jerome Ledoux, SVD

Shockingly, the cry of a baby jolted her into digging with Tango, quickly unearthing a baby wrapped in a blue towel. Scooping the infant up into her arms, she began to remove the dirt from his nose and mouth carefully but frantically.

"Please don't die!" she implored the baby. "I will never leave you. I love you."

To her utmost frustration and fear, Azita called 911, only to hear them get disconnected several times. Finally, she managed to flag down a motorist who called the Los Angeles County Sheriff's

On pins and needles, kneeling down with the baby in her arms, Azita comforted the child who stopped crying when he grabbed her wrist. "It was very emotional," she sighed. "What kind of sick human would do something like that? He still had his umbilical cord hanging from his stomach."

Posthaste, two sheriff's deputies, Darren Harris and Joel Nebel, reached the scene, checked the baby's vital signs and immediately requested paramedics who wasted no time taking charge of the baby. The core temperature of the child's body had fallen to a life-threatening temperature of 80 degrees fahrenheit. Most people may lose consciousness at a core body temperature of 82 degrees and may die when the core temperature of their body falls below 70 degrees. While they treated him for severe hypothermia, the doctors surmised that the child's 7-pound-12 ounce weight enabled him to survive the austere conditions. Obviously, this was not your everyday tale of a foundling in a blanket left on the steps of a church or hospital.

When the baby made an incredible recovery, the neonatal medical director at Huntington Memorial Hospital called it "really almost a miracle." "Baby Christian" was the name that hospital nurses gave him. People from California and from as far away as Florida showered Baby Christian with gifts, clothes and cash. Azita visited him, watching him lovingly as he slept on his stomach in an incubator. She wanted to adopt him, but feared that the huge notoriety of her story would jeopardize that.

Altadena authorities set out to find Christian's mother, scouring the entire area with scent dogs while knocking on neighborhood doors in search of witnesses.

"We believe the mother may be a scared teenager or young adult who simply did not know what to do," they speculated in a flier requesting information on the mother.

After a few weeks, a woman claiming to be his

There is help for your loved ones

Drug overdose is now the leading cause of accidental death in the United States. In 2014, it surpassed both car accidents and gun violence in number of deaths.

Those with loved ones who are using opiates or heroin need to be aware that opiates are the main contributors to this problem. With drug dealers across the United States mixing new and powerful synthetic drugs into street opiates such as heroin, the chance of accidental overdose has exponentially increased.

The drug Fentanyl, U-47700, and Furanyl can be 50 to 100 times more powerful than heroin, making the risk of a fatal overdose much higher. Drug dealers have been using this drug to increase the potency of their heroin at a lower cost. These new drugs are mother called detectives to inquire about any charges she might be facing for abandoning her child. Hurriedly hanging up, she called the hospital a bit later to ask about Christian's condition. No doubt, jolted into reality by the flier, by intense curiosity and by all the attention and love bestowed on her child, the terrified, remorse-ful mother wanted to see and hold the child she had abandoned, but she was petrified by all kinds of fears. Frustrated at every turn, Altadena authorities floated a motion for a $5,000 reward for anyone who could identify the person who buried the baby. "Fortunately, there is a happy ending to such a tragic beginning," the board said in the motion. "A couple has committed to adopting Baby Christian and will care for him and love him as every child deserves to be loved." After adoption by the Whitakers, Azita was not allowed to see Christian. For 20 years she waited for him to find her. Azita sobbed as a producer for On Air with Ryan Seacrest reunited her with Christian 20 years to the day of his rescue. Christian studied at Santa Monica and El Camino colleges and plans to study journalism at the University of Arizona. He wants to become an entertainment lawyer or maybe an actor, and hopes to help Azita Milanian with her orphans nonprofit organization, Children of One Planet.

Hancock Holding Company to become Hancock Whitney Corporation

SEA COAST ECHO

Hancock Holding Company's (Nasdaq:HBHC) shareholders overwhelmingly approved the company's proposal to change the name of the organization from "Hancock Holding Company" to "Hancock Whitney Corporation." Related to the name change, the company will also change its common stock ticker from "HBHC" to "HWC." Both changes will become effective May 25, 2018. Hancock Whitney publicly debuted its new brand earlier this month on its website, on new signs, on the mobile app and online banking, and at special events throughout the footprint. On May 25, as the company celebrates the 100th anniversary of the first transaction between Hancock and Whitney, the name change of the organization's legal entities becomes official. "Both Hancock and Whitney were founded in the 1800s to help the Gulf South grow," said Hancock Whitney President and CEO John M. Hairston. "We shared several early leaders and transacted the first business between the two banks on May 25, 1918, when Hancock sold the Bank of Orleans to Whitney. Now, 100 years to the day since that deal, we'll celebrate our longstanding legacy together with a brand that honors our history and looks optimistically toward our future." Additional corporate changes effective May 25, 2018 are as follows: "Whitney Bank" will become "Hancock Whitney Bank." "Hancock Investment Services, Inc." will become "Hancock Whitney Investment Services, Inc." The company's ticker for its exchange-traded debt (subordinated notes) will change from "HBHCL" to "HWCPL." Executives from Hancock Whitney will highlight the name and ticker change by participating in NASDAQ's Opening Bell Ceremony tomorrow morning (May 25) at 8:30 a.m. Central/9:30 a.m. Eastern. Viewers can watch the opening ceremony on Facebook at http://Facebook.com/Nasdaq or via the Nasdaq Marketsite Webcam at https://new.livestream.com/nasdaq/live. Additional coverage of the bell-ringing will be available on Hancock Whitney's social media channels. Shareholders also approved proposals related to directors, compensation, and auditors at today's annual shareholder meeting.

NASA has announced a pair of leadership changes at Stennis Space Center with John Bailey assuming the role of associate director following the retirement of Ken Human. The changes are effective May 31. Bailey, a native of Mobile, Alabama, and resident of Picayune, Mississippi, previously served as Stennis Engineering and Test Directorate director. He joined the NASA team at Stennis in 1999 after serving as a civilian communications engineer for the U.S. Air Force. He has served in multiple positions at Stennis, including as strategic business manager, deputy manager of external affairs, science and technology chief, technology development and transfer chief and intellectual property/dual use technology manager. Since 2015, he has managed the largest Stennis directorate, which includes rocket propulsion testing and advanced space technology development. "Without a doubt, John will serve this role well," Stennis Director Rick Gilbrech said. "His strong, diverse background spans a broad range of experiences across multiple organizations, which has given him a thorough understanding of the agency's mission and strategic goals and how they relate to the work being done here at Stennis." Human, a resident of Covington, Louisiana, has served almost 40 years with NASA and was named as Stennis associate director in 2010. He has said that "... American history has left behind a core, unique set of values that is absolutely worthy of upholding. These values include a trust in the individual and his work ethic combined with unity, self-sacrifice, and a willingness to strive for a greater, common goal. These values are what made America a leader in the world, a beacon upon a hill for all other countries to follow. They can be applied to every American, regardless of race, gender, or class. Without a solid foundation based on these shared, cohesive values, the Union cannot stand together as one.

"Yet, with each passing day, these same values are coming under greater attack, and as a result, tensions between fellow citizens in this country are reaching a boiling point. After years of watching Congressmen sit on their hands and do nothing about this, or even worse fan the flames for their own personal benefit, I decided to throw my hat into the race. I decided to run for Senate in order to bring power back into the hands of ordinary citizens that love their country and are concerned about its future."

AMERICAN LEGION POST & AUX. UNIT 139 HONOR VETERANS ON 150TH MEMORIAL DAY

SEA COAST ECHO

The year 2018 brings many benchmarks to American Legion Post 139 and American Legion Unit 139 in Bay St. Louis. In November 2018, the American Legion and the Auxiliary nationally will turn 100 years old. Our local Post and Unit have the distinction of being one of the originally chartered Posts and Units under the National Charter signed on November 11, 1918. In fact, one of our Post's charter members, Mr. Henry Capdepon was present at the Charter signing. His wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Capdepon was a charter member of our Auxiliary Unit as well. Mississippi American Legion Auxiliary will be honored this year as well by the election of our first National President in our 100th year of existence when Kathy Dungan of the Wesson Unit is elected at our Convention in Minneapolis in this summer.

In keeping with this long tradition of service to our veterans, our Post and Unit honored those veterans who made the ultimate sacrifice this weekend. Every year on the Saturday before Memorial Day, our Unit members, Junior members, and both our Miss Poppy and Little Miss Poppy distribute Poppies, the internationally recognized symbol of veterans lost during all wars. Poppies were originally made by the hospitalized veterans from World War 1 & 2 as a way for to earn a little extra money. That recognition stems from the famous poem "In Flanders Field." The Poppy is never to be sold but is always given away and donations are requested. All donations collected on National Poppy Day are used on our veterans' programs only. This year Miss Poppy, Sydney Lester and Little Miss Poppy, Abby Zinc spent their Saturday in front of Walmart in Waveland asking the annual question of shoppers "Wear a Poppy and Help a Veteran?" Memorial Day for Post and Unit 139 begins early at St. Mary's Cemetery at the gravesite of Clement R. Bontemps, the Post's namesake. Young Mr. Bontemps was the first man from Hancock County killed in the line of duty in World War 1. It was fitting for the Post to adopt that name for their new charter. Every year for the last 100 years, members of the Legion, Auxiliary, Junior Auxiliary, Sons of the Legion and, of course, both Miss Poppies have gathered at the gravesite to lay a wreath, say the pledge and honor the man for whom the Post was named. The ceremony then moves to the monument located on the Post grounds honoring those citizens of Hancock County who have died in the service of this country in all wars. Again, members of the Post, Auxiliary, Junior Auxiliary, Sons of the Legion, and Miss Poppy hold a wreath-laying ceremony. Miss Poppy lays a wreath while memorial services are conducted by the chaplains of both the Post and Auxiliary. Flags are placed at half-staff to honor their memory and taps are played to honor their loss. Among the flags flown at the monument is the POW/MIA flag as a reminder that not all who fought have returned home.

After the conclusion of both ceremonies, the Legion and Auxiliary host a luncheon at the Post Home for all who attend the ceremonies. This weekend of activities is a time-honored tradition for anyone who has been a member of American Legion Post and Auxiliary Unit 139 for the past 100 years and will continue as long as veterans, their wives, daughters, and sons follow the dedication of the members who came before them. If you would like to join our group, please message on our Facebook page for both American Legion Post 139 and American Legion Auxiliary Unit 139 and someone will contact you.

SEA COAST ECHO

Our Lady Academy (OLA) 9th grade student Sophie Timmons received a tuition scholarship of $4,480.00 from the Schoen Heier Bonura Scholarship Foundation at Our Lady Academy Awards Convocation held on May 17, 2018.

In 2007, OLA alumnae Schoen Heier Bonura and husband Ross Bonura established the scholarship fund as a means of helping a student continue her pursuit of a Catholic education at Our Lady Academy. “Sophie’s exemplary character, service to others, and pride in OLA, made her the ideal recipient of the Schoen Heier Bonura Scholarship,” said Principal Marilyn Pigott.

Sophie expressed, “This scholarship award was a big surprise for me. I can’t express how happy I was to receive it. I want to thank Mrs. Bonura for her generosity, support, and her commitment to help students continue their catholic education at OLA. It was an honor to meet Mrs. Bonura and to have her present the scholarship to me directly.” Sophie is a member of the Archery Team, Yearbook Club and has maintained honor roll status throughout her years at OLA.

In the ten years since the Schoen Heier Bonura Scholarship Fund was established, over $30,000 has been awarded. Mrs. Bonura’s belief is that “Education is a personal asset that can never be taken away...and that it is our duty and privilege as human beings to make a lifetime commitment to ‘give back’ and make a real difference in the lives of others.”

“Harvey” Opens Soon at Bay St. Louis Little Theatre

SEA COAST ECHO

The Bay St. Louis Little Theatre will finish the season with the iconic Pulitzer Prize winning production “Harvey” written by Mary Chase. It was adapted for film and television several times, most notably in a 1950 film starring James Stewart.

Elwood P. Dowd is an affable man who claims to have an unseen (and presumably imaginary) friend Harvey — whom Elwood describes as a six-foot, one-and-one-half-inch tall pooka resembling an anthropomorphic rabbit. Elwood introduces Harvey to everyone he meets. His social-climbing sister, Veta, increasingly finds his eccentric behavior embarrassing. She decides to have him committed to a sanitarium. When they arrive at the sanitarium, a comedy of errors ensues.

The show is directed by Keith Gregory, assisted by Michael Brown, and produced by Cheryl Grace. The cast includes Barry Newman, Jennifer Noll, Alana Freimanis, Shannon Wooten, Bill Matkin, Bill Myers, Robert Smith, Jim Russell, Irv Hansen, Linda Allen, Michelle LeBlanc, and Gloria Noonan. Set is designed by Jen Coulter. Set construction is by Jen Coulter and Dean Noel. The stage manager is Jen Coulter. Light and sound is managed by Betsy Noll. The show dates and times are June 1, 2, 8, and 9 at 8pm and June 3 and 10 at 2pm.

MAC now accepting minigrant applications

SEA COAST ECHO

JACKSON, MISS. – May 1, 2018 – Applications are now being accepted for the Mississippi Arts Commission's (MAC) minigrant program. The application deadline is Friday, June 1, 2018. MAC offers two minigrant deadlines each year – June 1 and November 1 to assist with smaller arts projects around the state.

Minigrants for organizations are designed to meet a wide variety of needs in Mississippi communities, schools and arts organizations and to stimulate arts projects in rural and underserved communities. Non-profit organizations or local government entities may apply for up to $1,000 to support a presentation by members of the MAC's Artist Roster, or they can use the minigrant to hire a consultant, or to support professional development efforts. Minigrants to organizations require a dollar-for-dollar cash match. An organization may receive one minigrant per fiscal year.

Professional-level artists may apply through the artist minigrant program for up to $500 to support promotion and marketing efforts, to attend a professional development workshop, or to purchase art supplies. The grants are awarded to artists as a reimbursable expense.

The government's business is your business.

And Mississippians count on their newspapers to keep apprised of public notice advertising.

Half of Mississippi adults recall reading or seeing public notice advertising in a local or state newspaper.

And almost half (46%) of adults who have seen public notice advertising prefer to receive them in a printed newspaper, much higher than any other source.

Most Mississippians (87%) say keeping the public informed through public notices and legal advertising is an important requirement for government agencies. And the preferred method of receiving these notices is in a printed newspaper along with their associated websites.

According to a 2013 Advertising and Media Use Survey*, legal ads in printed newspapers have a much higher credibility than other media.

Over 1.5 million Mississippians read their local newspaper. Whether in print, online or on the go, newspapers are the leading source of information for Mississippians.

There is power in print.

SEA COAST ECHO

On May 2, 2018, high school juniors participating in the Hancock Youth Leadership Academy continued their journey of economic development in Hancock County by visiting the John C. Stennis Space Center. The economic development session was the fifth session for the high school juniors and was sponsored by Aerojet Rocketdyne. Students began the day with an overview and briefing on internship and career opportunities at Stennis before traveling to the Naval Meteorology and Oceanographic Command Center. There they were able to view the tools used for scientific exploration of the ocean floor.

Aerojet Rocketdyne, a world recognized aerospace leader in propulsions, sponsored both lunch and a tour of their facility. It is here that large liquid rocket engines are assembled and tested. Next on the agenda was an amazing tour of NASA's Propulsion Test Complex where the young leaders were able to walk to the top of A2 test stand where engines for all manned Apollo and space shuttle flights have been tested and where next-generation engines that will once again carry humans into deep space will be tested.

Students then met with Hamish Guthrie, General Manager of Rolls-Royce Outdoor Jet Engine test facility and discussed career opportunities with the students as well as why Stennis Space Center was a good home for their company. Students were taken on a wind-shield tour of the $50 million outdoor jet engine test stand.

The full day came to a close at the Naval Small Craft Instruction and Technical Training School (NAVSCIATTS) where students learned how this Naval Special Warfare Command trains and educates foreign Special Operation Forces.

The students were amazed to learn that the more than 11,500 students from 100 plus partner nations have graduated from this school since 1963.

The Hancock Youth Leadership Academy is the first and only county-wide youth leadership program in Hancock County, and is a program of The Hancock Resource Center. Moving forward, local community sponsorships are needed. Please consider sponsoring a session or making a general donation to support the ongoing operation of the Hancock Youth Leadership Academy. Invest in Hancock County's future by cultivating its next generation of leaders: visit www.hancockhrc.org or call 228-463-8887 to learn how.

Members of Partners for Stennis & Michoud Meet with Congress

SEA COAST ECHO

Members of Partners for Stennis & Michoud participated in the 27th annual Citizens for Space Exploration Trip to DC May 15-17, 2018. The goal was to meet with members of Congress and their staff from Mississippi and Louisiana as part of a National Coalition advocating on behalf of US leadership in human space exploration.

Members of Partners were part of close to 100 travelers, representing 26 states, who conducted over 400 Congressional office visits. The diverse group of travelers included elected officials, industry representatives, community leaders, and 35 students studying engineering or related technical fields. The students with the Mississippi / Louisiana Team were Grant Johnson, a sophomore at Mississippi State University studying Aeronautics Engineering and Matthew Stanbro, a PhD candidate in physics at the University of Alabama.

The Partners team applauded sustained policy and budget support from Congress and the President for American leadership in space exploration. The group advocates for full funding of space exploration programs as set forth in the 2017 NASA Authorization Act; ISS extension beyond 2024 based on capabilities; and, utilizing commercial crews to service the ISS within the next year. They also believe that Orion / SLS are critical capabilities to enable human exploration beyond low-earth orbit; and, advocate for an incremental, American-led approach to sending crews on deep space exploration missions as soon as possible.

Michael McDaniel of Aerojet Rocketdyne who chairs Partners said the team saw continued strong bipartisan support for NASA human space exploration programs and Navy operations from the Mississippi and Louisiana delegation.

"These visits are important to foster a greater understanding of NASA's space exploration programs and insure support for Mars as the ultimate destination with the Moon as our stepping stone," said McDaniel.

The Partners team also addressed other issues of interest at Stennis Space

Center and Michoud Assembly Facility such as continuing the extension of Enhanced Use Lease Authority, increasing rocket manufacturing and testing opportunities, and the expansion of Navy operations through Gulf of Mexico Unmanned Systems and the new certification program at the University of Southern Mississippi for glider pilots and unmanned systems at Stennis.

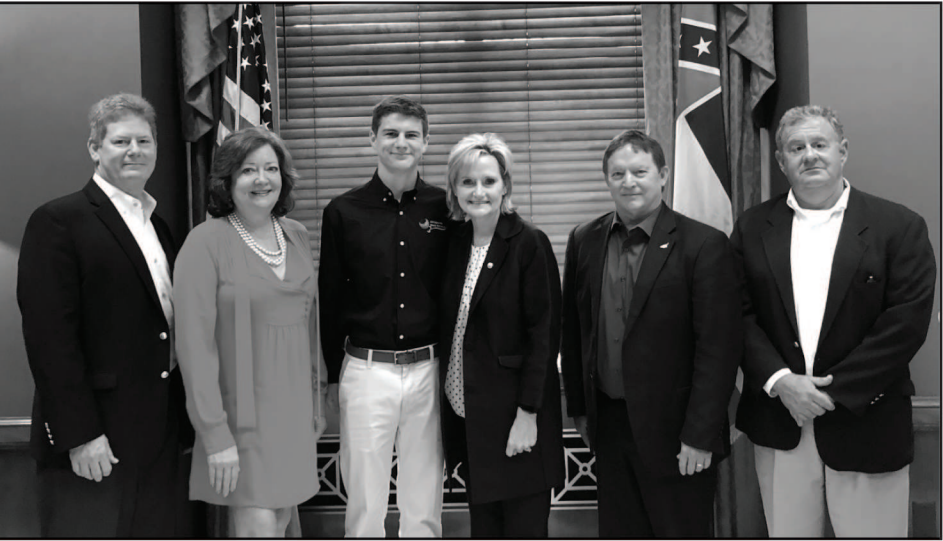

Bill Randolph, President of Syncom Space Services was part of the Partners DC team. He oversees the SACOM (Synergy Achieving Consolidated Operations and Maintenance) program and also provided an update on how this contract is reducing costs and increasing benefits to NASA facilities and the Space

Program in general.
